Long Bio

Tanis Roeder is the Founder and Owner of Elevate Your Communication, an international training and consulting company that focuses on educating and empowering individuals to become exceptional communicators.

After receiving her degree in Speech Communication, she set out to change the world one word at a time. She then took a bit of a detour and gained ten years of life experience in sales, PR, marketing, and event planning before launching her own company in 2011.

She has spent the last decade focusing on verbal and non-verbal communication skills that have served as the scaffolding for her business and allowed her to raise over 1 million dollars for charity. Working with industries ranging from Healthcare to Agriculture, Mortgage to Engineering, she loves partnering with anyone who is wanting to take their communication skills to the next level.

Tanis is a proud member of the National Speakers Association, a Past President of NSA-Colorado, a Rotarian, and an active community volunteer. She believes that giving back to the world is why we are here, that your perspective can always be more positive, and that you are better at things than you give yourself credit for!
